An earthquake has struck a neighbouring country. All the buildings have been affected and are in danger of collapsing, including a museum where archaeological treasures of Humanity are on display. All regions with more than three stars in Transport lose one and give it to Mr Wheeler so that he can charter cargo planes to save this precious world heritage.

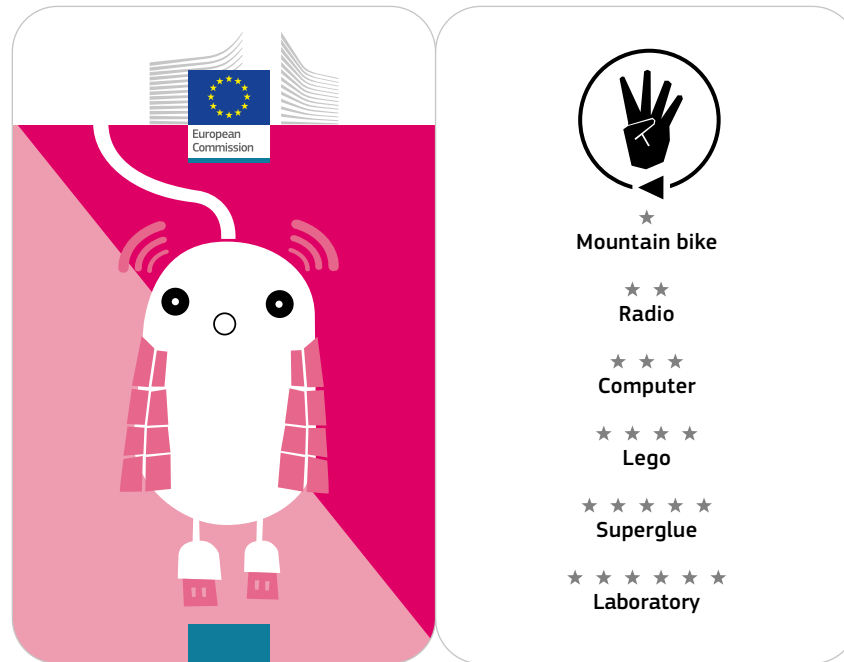

Your football stadium no longer met the standards. You therefore expanded and modernised it. You can now host regional, national and even European matches! All the neighbouring regions have done work to improve access to the stadium which is now prestigious and a source of pride for everyone.

Ms Allegro gives you a star in Tourism and Culture and Mr Wheeler gives all the regions a star in Transport.

River water purification plants have been installed in agricultural regions of Latin America where they have a shortage of drinking water. Unfortunately, these regions are so financially disadvantaged that they cannot get enough diesel to run the plants.

All regions with more than three stars in Energy lose one and give it to Mr Electric so that he can send them engines that run on plant-based fuels.

A global financial crisis forces all the regions in Europe to make savings and slow down the development of their educational authorities and cultural centres temporarily.

All regions with more than three stars in Tourism & Culture lose one.

Your region has just opened one of the biggest university campuses in Europe, specialising in computing. The young people in your region will therefore be able to acquire skills and qualifications that are highly sought after all over the world. All students in Europe will be able to come and study at this innovation centre which benefits everyone.

A fire has broken out in a nuclear plant in Russia. Since the accident, a radioactive cloud has passed over Europe. As a precautionary measure, consumption of fruit and vegetables is suspended.

All regions with more than three stars in Environment lose one and give it to Ms Blossom so that she can measure the radioactivity and reassure the population.

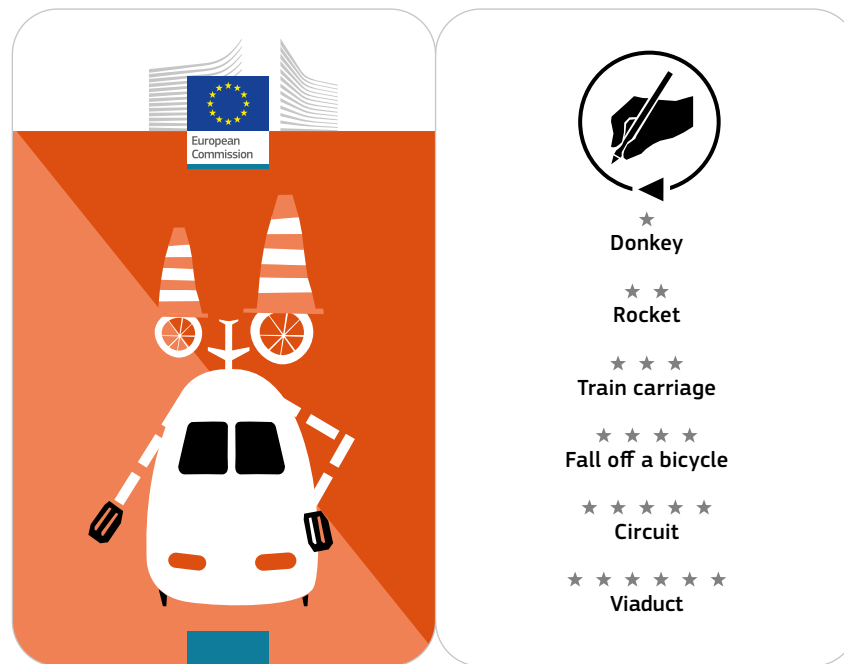

You have undertaken a huge building programme of villages of passive houses which consume very little energy. The savings you are making allow you to put more money into social projects and limit pollutant emissions. Your unusual project has won over a lot of other regions who have decided to do the same as you.

Mr Electric gives you a star in Energy and Ms Blossom gives all the regions a star in Environment.

Heavy snowfall has all of Europe gridlocked. Most factories, offices, shops and schools are closed. Only regions that have invested in a snow clearance policy still have good mobility and economic activity. In everyone's interests, they therefore have to come to the aid of all the others.

All regions with more than three stars in Education & Social lose one and give it to Mr Vitality so that he can come to the aid of the regions in difficulties.

All the regions of Europe have improved their road network by installing pleasant, safe rest areas next to motorways. Travelling through Europe is now safer and pleasanter. More tourists come to stay in the countryside and visit the cities.

Flooding has devastated numerous third world countries. The regions of Europe who can do so are duty-bound to come to their aid to prevent future disasters.

All regions with more than three stars in Inventions lose one and give it to Ms Qwerty to build dykes and flood barriers in these countries.

Your region has chosen to preserve a forest rather than building a shopping centre that was not really needed in that place. After carrying out studies, scientists have discovered that the forest is populated with ancient trees, some of which have medicinal properties. This discovery will make it possible to take even better care of the European population.
